HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE MAC EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

The Executive Board of MAC met on January 13, 1984 at the Paul Himmelfarb Health Sciences Library, George Washington University Medical Center, Washington, D.C.

Progress continues in obtaining tax-exempt status for MAC. Mickey Cook, Immediate Past Chairperson, has been working closely with an attorney to complete the last details of this project.

The Treasurer's financial records will be audited by an outside accountant on an annual basis. This decision, based on a recommendation by Katherine Yatrofsky, Treasurer, will insure ongoing accuracy of the account. Ms. Yatrofsky also suggested that MAC members be sent a membership card upon payment of dues.

Plans are underway for the 1985 joint meeting of MAC and Southern Chapter of MLA which will be held in Winston-Salem, N.C. The tentative date has been set for the first week in November. Sherry Anderson and Mike Sprinkle have agreed to co-chair the Local Arrangements Committee of this first joint meeting.

Jo Anne Boorkman also reported that MAC has been in contact with MLA's Program and Convention Committee to offer Baltimore as the host city for the 1989 Annual Meeting of MLA.

Michele Chatfield, Chairperson, Local Arrangements Committee, reported on the upcoming 1984 Annual Meeting which will be held in Washington, D.C. at the Shoreham Hotel.

Jo Anne Boorkman, Chairperson, appointed Gretchen Naisawald Chairperson of an ad hoc Publicity Committee. This committee will be responsible for the development of a chapter newsletter, a membership brochure and chapter stationery.

TRANSFORMATIONS

1984 MAC Annual Meeting Program
November 14 - 17, Shoreham Hotel
Washington, D.C.

The health care field, which includes medical libraries, is being influenced and changed by technological, political, ethical and economic factors, which are little understood by many of us. The 1984 MAC Annual Meeting Program will try to provide perspectives on the "transformation" taking place in our work place - the hospital, medical school, federal agency or special library concerned with patient care or medical research.

In the first of two plenary sessions, speakers will discuss the economic and ethical factors which are transforming the health care delivery systems in the U.S. The second session will address technological changes, specifically possibilities for transforming access to, and delivery of, information made possible by telecommunications networks.

One of the major forces for change, the computer, has been put within the reach of almost every library with the advent of the PC, or microcomputer. This, more than any other technological innovation, has the potential to transform library operations. The Program Committee has planned an entire afternoon devoted to demonstrations (hands-on if possible) of library applications for microcomputers.

An attempt has been made to provide a blend of passive and active participation. Special Interest Group sessions devoted to Public Services, Technical Services and Library Instruction should provide opportunities for smaller group interaction. The Online Lunch will feature a return to round table discussion. A panel of speakers will discuss survival techniques for librarians in a "bottom line" environment at the Hospital Librarians Breakfast. State groups will also be meeting in Washington. Many have planned programs which take a "closer to home" look at the issues raised in plenary sessions.

Hopefully, everyone should find something to hold their interest, excite their imagination and increase their understanding of the forces transforming their professional lives.

MAC PLANNING

As most of you are aware, the Medical Library Association (MLA) has been going through a process of strategic planning to assess the future direction of the organization. Some questions being asked are:

- What is the 1988 environment that we, both as individual professionals and as organized groups, will face?
- What "business" are we in? (Who are we, what is our reason for being)?
- What are our goals for 1988? (By 1988, we will be _____).
- What strengths do we have that will help us move toward our goals?
- What weaknesses do we have that may work against achievement of our goals?
- What are the guiding principles that underlie all our activity?

With MLA discussing these questions, it is also necessary for the Mid-Atlantic Chapter (MAC) to address them.

In the first issue of MAC Messages, we have tried to bring you up-to-date on what types of activities the chapter has been doing and intends to be doing in the near future. Right now we have rather a simple structure with an executive board and two standing committees - legislation and nominating. In addition, a program committee, under the direction of the Chairman-elect, plans an annual program meeting in conjunction with the local arrangements committee in the host area.

Since MAC meets only once a year, it is difficult to feel involved or get a sense of what MAC is or can do for us as individual professionals. This newsletter is an attempt to begin expanding our communication efforts and also a way to involve you, the member, in MAC activities. As of now, the newsletter is scheduled to be published semi-annually in the spring and fall. Is this frequently enough to be effective?

The names of officers and committee chairmen have been identified in this issue of MAC Messages so you will know who to contact if you have questions, suggestions or problems that should come to the attention of MAC. Also, we hope some of you will express an interest in becoming more involved in MAC activities. We need to know who you are as well as what your expertise and interests are.

In addition to the questions posed at the beginning of this article, the executive board will be addressing more local issues.

- What is our relationship with MLA?
- Will or should chapter membership be restricted to MLA members? (Right now, MAC officers have to be MLA members).
- How would mandatory MLA membership affect MAC membership?
- Why aren't all MLA members in the MAC area members of MAC? How can we increase their interest in becoming members of MAC?
- How should MAC interact with the MLA Chapter Council?
- Should MAC be offering CE courses in conjunction with state groups at different times of the year in addition to those offered at the annual meeting?

These are just a few of the areas that the executive board needs to address. We also need your ideas. What issues are important to you? How can MAC best meet your professional goals, as an individual and an organization? We hope to hear from many of you. Please feel free to contact me or any Board member, committee chairman or area reporter. You can even write a letter to the editor, now, and make your views known to the entire MAC membership. I hope we hear from you and that we can have a stimulating, fruitful dialogue which will help make MAC a vital and strong chapter.

USER FRIENDLY WORKSHOPS

Many library users are expressing an interest in doing their own computer searches using office terminals or personal computers. "User friendly" systems provide access to databases, such as MEDLINE, and require no special training. A number of commercial systems are available:

*BRS/After Dark and BRS/Colleague Medical--Whereas After Dark is available evenings and weekends, Colleague Medical can be searched anytime. Both operate in menu-driven format and allow access to 28 databases. Colleague provides full text of selected journal articles and medical textbooks. For details, call 800-833-4707.

*DIALOG/Knowledge Index--Provides access to 24 databases and is available evenings and weekends. Command-driven, KI allows more advanced searching techniques (i.e. "Explode") than does After Dark. Call 800-227-5510.

*SCI-MATE--Is one vendor's response to downloading. Two software packages are available; one for online searching any vendor, and the other for file management. For information, call 800-523-4092.

*MI/NET--This medical information network includes drug and disease information, medical coding and nomenclature, a portion of Excerpta Medica, and an electronic mail service, call 703-442-2500 or 800-368-3407.

MAC member institutions are responding to user queries about these systems by providing a number of workshops and demonstrations. At the Paul Himmelfarb Library, a CME seminar given by Reference and Online Services staff discussed search strategy formulation, micro-computer hardware needed to go online, system features and commands, and was followed by a laboratory hands-on. Two 2 hour sessions given at the Welch Library introduced participants to the different services and focused upon advanced searching techniques, including MeSH. At the University of Maryland Health Sciences Library, individuals registered for a series of online demonstrations. A similar program was offered at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Besides an introductory seminar about the various search services, the University of North Carolina held a workshop on using micro-computers to perform online searches, an all-day DIALOG training session, and a search strategy formulation class.

For more information about these programs, contact: Elaine Martin at GW (202) 676-2963; Katherine Branch or Jayne Crofts at Welch (301) 955-3413; Mary Ann Williams at U. Md. (301) 528-7373; Elaine Alligood at LJ. Va. (804) 924-5444; or Ellen Brassil at LJNC (919) 962-0700.

LEGISLATION COMMITTEE

The Mid-Atlantic Chapter Legislation Committee is composed of representatives from the states of Maryland, N. Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The current chairperson is Jean Pugh (Welch Medical Library, 1900 E. Monument Street, Baltimore, MD 21205; 301-955-3418).

The main goal of the Committee is to keep librarians within the region informed of current legislation affecting medical and health sciences libraries. The Committee also solicits letters representing librarian's viewpoints as well as others and forwards the letters to appropriate members of the House of Representatives and the Senate. Past topics have included the renewal and funding appropriations for the Medical Library Assistance Act, the Medicare/Medicaid hospital conditions for participation and the Office of Personnel Management's proposed changes in qualifications for federal librarians. Future efforts will be directed toward issues such as the proposed revision of federal printing regulations and increases of telecommunications charges.

Anyone interested in joining the Mid-Atlantic Chapter Legislation Committee should notify Jean Pugh. All are welcome!

FIRST REGION 2 RAC MEETING

The Southeastern/Atlantic Regional Medical Library Services (SE/A RMLS) has assembled a Regional Advisory Council (RAC) consisting of nineteen health sciences librarians and health professionals from throughout the region. The RAC held its first annual meeting in Baltimore on March 29 and 30, 1984.

To open the meeting, W. G. Cooper, Associate Director for Planning at NLM and Cyril Feng, Director, Health Sciences Library, UMAB, presented an overview of IAIMS and the five IAIMS planning grants currently in progress. During the day long business meeting, the RAC approved a set of operating guidelines for itself and elected Ted F. Srygley of the University of Florida at Gainesville as its first Chairman. Carol Jenkins, Executive Director of SE/A RMLS reviewed the organizational year. Reports from the program coordinators and discussion focused on the major programs of SE/A RMLS: consultation, training, resource sharing and program planning.

SE/A RMLS will offer consultation on development of services, grants and networking. Region 2 has written a consultation policy and encourages additions to its developing consultation registry.

The Region 2 Training Program will use local instructors where possible and emphasize the training of future trainers. Workshops and online updates will be offered in conjunction with state and regional meetings. A workshop schedule is available and suggestions for new workshops are welcome.

The Resource Sharing Program will collect ILL statistics from basic units this spring. SE/A RMLS is currently testing DOCLINE and will soon offer access to resource libraries. Work is continuing on the 1984 Region 2 Union List to be published this fall. The RMLS will investigate the use of electronic mail systems in the Region in order to disseminate information on the systems currently in use.

The RAC formed an Ad Hoc Committee to determine the feasibility of producing regional directories from computer-based files. Once the goal is refined the Committee will be seeking its members from the Region at large.

The Region 2 Office and its Regional Advisory Council encourage comments from all regional members. Look for more complete information on regional activities in SEA CURRENTS,
